galerie binome

Galerie Binome's booth will feature four artists who explore the whole spectrum of photographic practices: from Anaïs Boudot's analog prints on glass plates to Thibault Brunet's Google Earth extracted images, through the collage work of young artist Edouard Taufenbach - the latest artist represented by the gallery - and Michel Le Belhomme's photographic models.

However, what they all have in common is a long creative process centered on gesture, through which their images progressively build up. Tears, cracks, folds, cuts, collages, waste materials, fix-ups, cover-ups and montages are left visible. But those words borrowed to the field of DIY do not even begin to grasp the complexity of their approaches. When one look closer, a real sophistication of image manipulation unfolds; from the calculated balance of Belhomme's constructions, the mathematic sequencing of Taubenbach's domestic tales to the algorithmic variations of Brunet's suburban architectures, as well as the inspiration of the kintsukuroi Japanese traditional technique by Boudot.

By playing on volume and movement within the flat and fixed image, each artist succeeds in freeing him/herself from the classical standards of photography and creates something more than a image, something like a real photographic object out of space and time.

BOOTH PRESENTATION

Anaïs Boudot, untitled (stone), La noche oscura series, 2017 unique piece in edition of 3 (+1AP) - 30 x 21 cm silver print on glass, gold paint, wood frame (chassis)

La noche oscura, 2017

La Noche Oscura series was produced during Anaïs Boudot's residency at The Casa de Velazquez in 2017. It forms a bright counter-point to a nocturnal and mysterious structures; a dark night promenade of the soul. Crossing the landscapes and cities of Spain (Toledo, Segovia, Avila) in the footsteps of Teresa of Avila and Jean de la Croix, she was in search of visions, and places of passages. She 'gleaned' images that highlight details from nature where stone and plant material intertwine.

Through their format and their golden background, these photographs achieve the status of object or even of a divinity's icon of which would be natural and disorderly. Some of these pieces reveal a golden fracture, like a fault through the image, but it also links parts. It recalls the Japanese technique kintsukuroi consisting of repairing broken ceramics with gold, therefore sublimating the breakage, giving value to what has been broken and then repaired without throwing it out.

« Every mystical discourse has this peculiar, dizzying, and perhaps frightful, of being conjointly an absolute openness on the possible and access to the unknown. Here then is the paradox: to seek the unknown as an answer, a quest or a complaint, in order better to find the unknown as such; infinitely pursued, the latter appears as a blinding light in the darkest night, and in which it is necessary to plunge. [...], the mystical formulation is a movement consisting of turning incessantly around a hard, irreducible stone that would easily take the name of secret. »

[extract] Léa Bismuth, art critic and independent curator, regarding the work of Anaïs Boudot, La noce oscura, La Casa de Velazquez Catalog, 2017.

Born in Metz in 1984, Anaïs Boudot graduated from the École nationale supérieure de la photographie in 2010, and from Le Fresnoy-Studio in 2013. Galerie Binome has represented her since the exhibition « Mouvements de Terrain » (Movement of the Earth) in which she participated alongside Michel Le Belhomme.

In 2016, she was awarded the Grand Prix Samaritaine de la jeune photographie, chaired by Sarah Moon and Antoine Arnault, for her black and white photographic work tinged with pictorialism and surrealism, making use of the architectural volumes and the light specific to the places.

She is a member 2017 of the Casa de Velazquez in Madrid.

Anaïs Boudot continues her work based around processes for image formation and exploring photographic techniques. A constant back and forth between film and digital photography, showing or diminishing the boundary that demarcates them, she attempts to examine the means that set this medium apart.

In photography, but also through installations and video, she creates hybrid, enigmatic and hypnotic images, that are timeless and as close as possible to experiencing.

The landscape and light are central to her concerns. Boundaries between space and temporality are porous, experienced as mental spaces in the realm of recall. Drawing on the notions of ‘presence/absence’, perceptual disturbance and the confines of the visible, her approach is voluntarily committed to these interstices created between time and movement.

edition of 5 (+2AP) - 50 x 50 cm

on aluminium, white frame, anti-reflection glass

In 2014 Thibault Brunet took part to a collective project, France(s) Territoire Liquide. With his Typologie du virtuel, he selected in Google Earth buildings that were coproduced by anonymous individuals, hence shedding a light on the desire to leave a trace in the digital world. The images were exhibited at the Tri Postal Museum in June 2015, the Biennale de Lyon in Septembre 2015. In 2016, in the rest of his solo exhibition Répercussions at Galerie Binome, a triptych of Typologie du virtuel series integrates the contemporary art Municipal Fund of Paris, acquired by the FMAC, and exhibited at FIAC in 2016.

« Thibault Brunet explores the territory of France through Google Earth. [...] The images in this series have been created from buildings situated in peri-urban zones and scale-modelled in 3D par GE users. Shopping centres, housing estates and big company towers come under global architectural typology, without any connection with the territory. Brunet anchors them in a specific space and time, adding a shadow shaped according to the day and time of their conception. He re-contextualises images by connecting them to the action of their original maker and places himself in a sequence of collective creation within which he becomes a new link. The context is a shadow, it is the creation of a projection space vanishing into the mist and that the artist compares to a ‘digital cloud*’ whose buildings seem to suddenly appear like pop-ups. »

« Thibault Brunet acknowledges the dilution of reality by a virtual world and photography by synthetic images. »

[extract] Étienne Hatt, chef editor and journalist at Art press magazine, Répercussions text exhibition at Galerie Binome, November 2015.

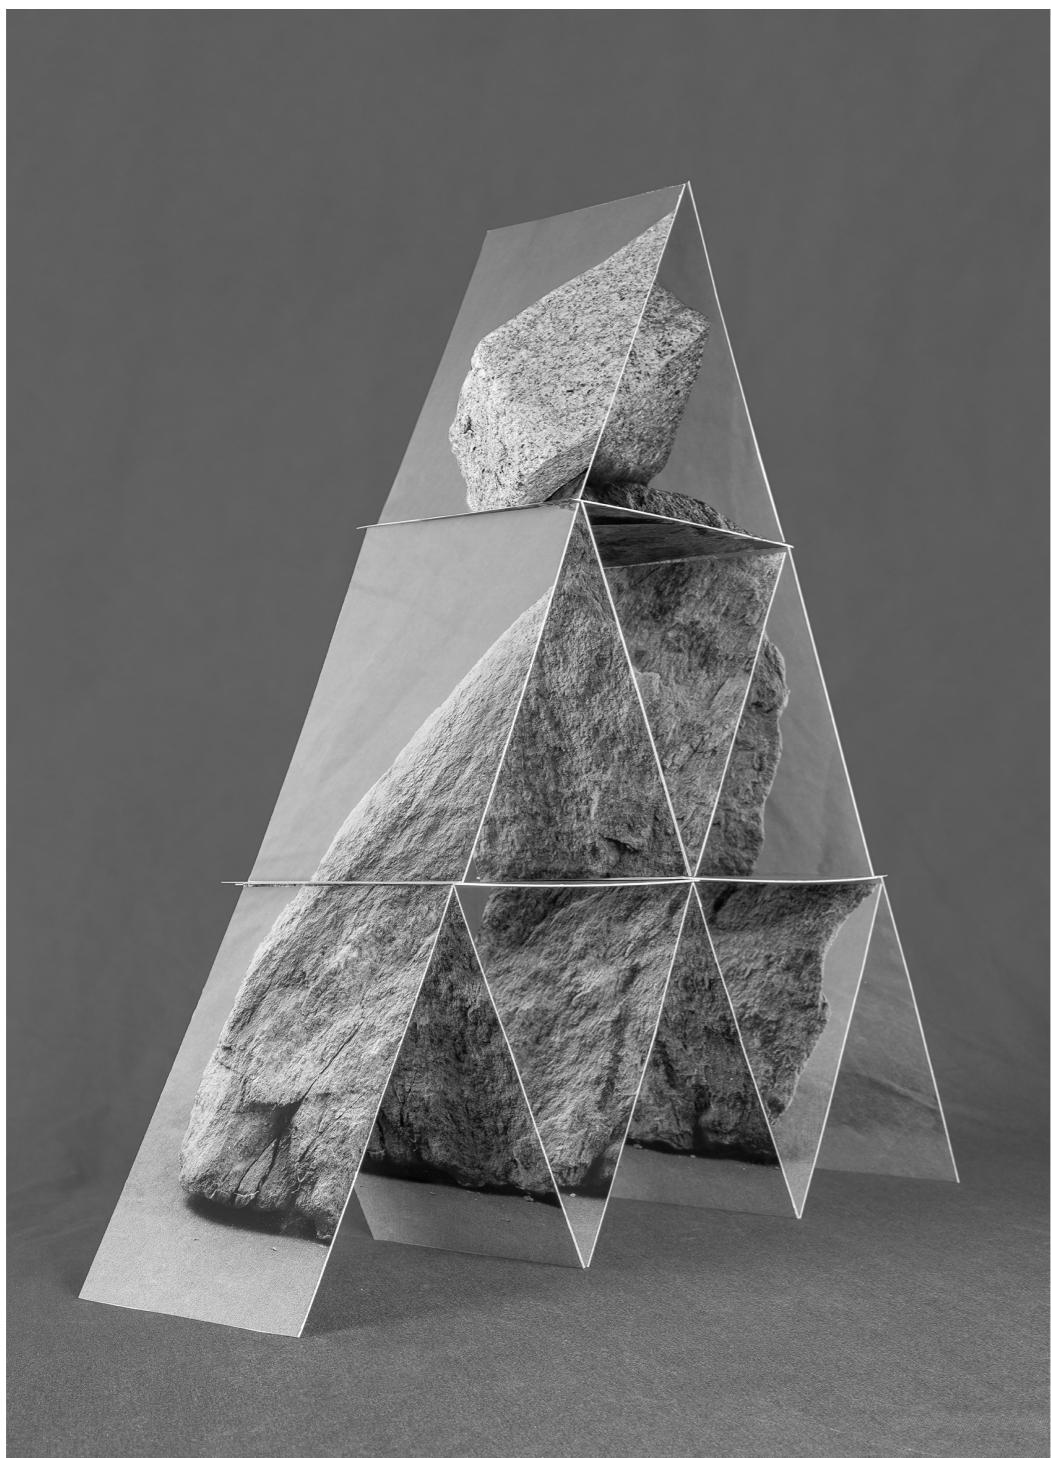

Thibault Brunet (1982) is a virtual photographer represented by Galerie Binome since 2012. His work plays with the codified genres in photography to question our relationship to virtuality in a society where reality as a whole is being digitalized.

Shortly after graduating from the Ecole supérieure des Beaux Arts in Nîmes, he distinguished himself from 2008 with outstanding series based on video games. For several years, Thibault has travelled through virtual worlds with his camera looking for landscapes and faces, Landscapes, First person shooter, and Vice City (2007-13), and more recently architectures in Google Earth with Typologie du virtuel (2014-17). These series draw the attention of several institutions and competitions : Winner of [reGeneration2] of Musée de l'Élysée (2011), Finalist of Aperture Fondation New York Prize (2012), FOAM Talent 2013, Mois de la Photo Paris (2012), European Month of Photography Berlin, Vienne, Luxembourg, Los Angeles (2012-13), Institut d'Art Contemporain de Villeurbanne (2013), Public Prize of Sciences Po for contemporary art (2014), Prix Coup de cœur Art-Collector - Jeune Création (2014), Winner Carte Blanche PMU /Le Bal (2014), Winner of Photo London John Kobal Residency award (2016).

His work is also present in prestigious public collections such as the French National Library (BnF), Fonds Municipal d'art contemporain (FMAC) of Paris and the Elysée Lausanne Museum, and in private collections such as Henry Seydoux's, Evelyne & Jacques Deret's and Viviane Esders's.

In 2017, he shows Soleil noir, a personnel exhibition at Contemporary Art Center of Pont-en-Royans. He also takes part of Mutations-créations / imprimer le monde - group show at Centre Pompidou (Beaubourg), La Nuit des images at Musée de l'Élysée Lausanne, and Paysages français, une aventure photographique - group show at BnF, in parallel with his presence at Galerie Binome's booth at Paris Photo.

Michel Le Belhomme, untitled#109, After Fischli and Weiss, Les deux labyrinthes series (2014-17)
edition of 5 (+2AP) - 105 x 75 cm
inkjet on Fine Art Hahnemühle Fine Art paper laminated on Dibond white frame, anti-reflection glass

Les deux labyrinthes, 2014-17

‘ While I hold a great respect for classical traditions of photography, I believe it is indispensable to place them in perspective. The Two Labyrinths explores its most blatant legend; landscape and its representation. Landscape, the ultimate romantic subject, most often expresses itself from the angle of the contemplative or the breathtaking. Etymologically, a landscape is a layout of traits, characters, and shapes of a limited space. It’s a portion of space that is represented or observed, subject to a point of view.

But it is to be seen firstly as a system, perfect theorem of time and space, of flows and crossings, of borders and intermixing. In this series, I firmly choose to stand ‘in conflict’ with the landscape, as a vision and as a product of space and despite its apparent obviousness I assume it can be put in perspective and thus reinvented. To do so, I humbly place myself in a structuralist approach of the spectrums of exploration, analysis and experimentation of this visible production.

To experience landscape is to practice it, to place it in contradiction, thus creating a peripheral vision. The visible then asserts itself through deconstruction and alteration. Without moving away from the primary function of an image, which is to show, this series elaborates hybrid and fanciful creatures, images of images, representations of representations, resonances of multiple echoes.

Halfway between dreamt up images, suspended between documentation and fiction, and a visual experience with floating absurdity and metaphorical irony; reality swiftly moves from obviousness to abstraction, from fullness to emptiness, from mockery to simulation. The visible thus becomes minimalistic, ghost-like, a breathtaking void, a work of fiction.’

[extract] Michel Le Belhomme, The two labyrinths, 2016

« [...] The Two Labyrinths offers a playful interrogation of the grammar of photography, perpetually calling its procedures and techniques, and his own habits and sensibility, into question. For Le Belhomme, photography is a space of action, a space in which to encounter and engage with different visions, to confront different ways of thinking and seeing. »

[extract] Sian Hanrahan, art critic, The Two Labyrinths, Michel Le Belhomme, Source magazine, The Photographic Review, Solas Prize special issue, December 2015.

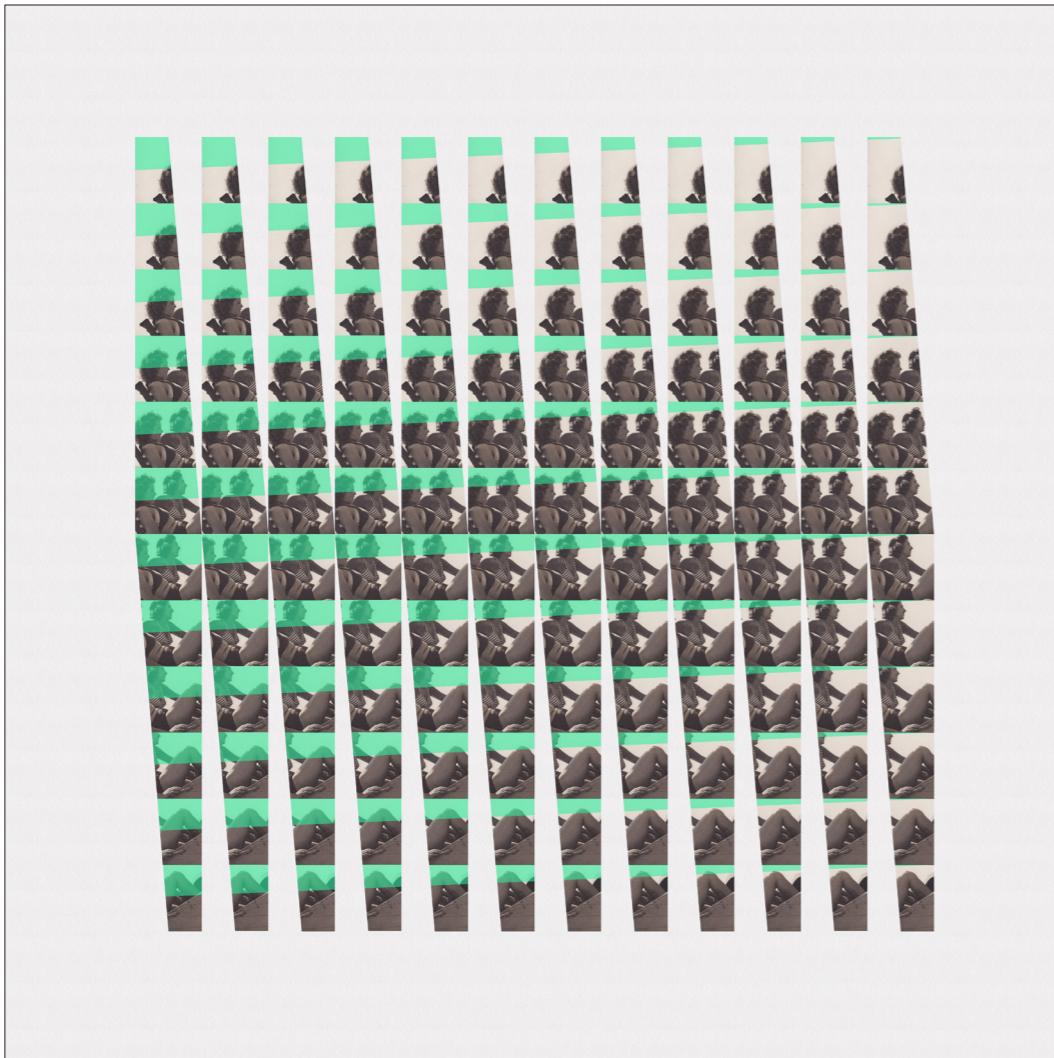

Michel Le Belhomme was born in 1973 in France. He studied at Rennes Art School with Tom Drahos art education (1999). Then he went on to study at the University Rennes2 learning a Diploma superior of Arts Education. In 2010, he was one of the winners in the Mission Jeunes Artistes (Toulouse) and he won the first prize lacritique.org-Voies Off, in Arles.

In 2015, he won the first Solas photography prize (IE) and the first Voies Off photography prize (Arles). The next year, he was nominated for the Merck Preis Darmstädter Tage der Fotografie (DE) and for the Renaissance photography prize of London (Best image). Following Mouvements de Terrain group show exhibition at Galerie Binome (which he was also scenograph and art curator), he takes part of the Bieler Fototage (CH). At the beginning of the year 2017, he was noticed by the national french press (Liberation, Le Monde) with #109, After Fischli and Weiss photography, highlighted during L'Œil plié exhibition at Galerie Binome. Furthermore The two labyrinths series was shown at Derby (UK) during the Format festival, at Rencontres d'Arles' Off, with Fotohaus Paris/Berlin (Errance Blanche exhibition), and it was published in international photography magazines as Phases or Photogrphy. In October until January 2018, he will take part of Paysages Français, une aventure photographique at the BnF, following by France augmentée at Galerie Binome in parallel with his presence at Paris Photo.

Far from a romantic and touristic vision of the landscape, Michel Le Belhomme's photographic research develops an ambiguous relationship to representation, between document and fiction. Advocating an analytical photography, his images place the spectator in a position of visual instability, seeking for a meaning in order to tell between what's true and what's false :

« Michel Le Belhomme practices the slow sculptural protocol which makes paintings in the wake of Brassai's involuntary sculptures and of Patrick Tosani's ready mades, with their corrected scale and point of view. From Brassai, he learned the use of cheap materials and their great power of transformation. From Tosani, he learned how to work on the singularity of objects and their metamorphoses in a play of proximity, disrupted by distance and the variation in scale. »

Edouard Taufenbach, Judith & Estelle, 2017
CINEMA : histoires domestiques series 2016-17
unique piece - 80 x 80 cm
144 hand-painted Lambda reprints of a vintage photograph, stained-glass paint, collage on Canson paper, black frame with anti-reflection glass

CINEMA : histoires domestiques, 2016-17

‘ Telling yourself stories, building a narrative around unknown and familiar photographic images. ’ Edouard Taufenbach

All the artworks from Edouard Taufenbach’s series entitled CINEMA: histoires domestiques (home stories) tell unique stories, mixed collages which creative start lies in the fictional dimension of anonymous images. Edouard Taufenbach draws from archives and vernacular photographic collections from the 1930s up to the 60s.

The starting point of each composition is based on a domestic image, a caption of a daily life family scene with friends or lovers, an original print which is multiplied by the artist. Through playing on internal framing and assembling, he mimics cinema film rolls and restitutes the movement of an imaginary movie camera. The artist then colorizes his photographic sequences with stained glass paint.

The reading dynamic of the work is therefore underlined by the progression of a graphic shape. At close look, our eye wanders and discovers the picture while imagining the story behind. At distance, document and fiction merge in the perception of this hybrid visual object evoking both chronophotography and pictorial abstraction. Cinema is said to be born from this encounter of Art & Science.

« Borrowing from iterative music as much as from the structural cinema of Peter Kubelka or Paul Sharits, from the flicker films as well as the micro rhythms of urban music, Edouard Taufenbach's video and photographic works proceed from the same sequencing gesture which produces a continuous yet composite space-time in which the discrete cuts are smoothed by repetition and loop effects. »

[extract] Françoise Parfait, Between the images, the film, regarding the work of Edouard Taufenbach : CINEMA: Home stories, November 2016

Born in 1988, Edouard Taufenbach lives and works in Paris where he graduated in Arts and digital media from Sorbonne university. His research is divided between video art and plastic expression. Working around concepts of trace and memory, his works are constructed by repetition and accumulation of forms. In 2014, he was the winner of Ici & Demain festival, he exhibited his work in several festivals, as well in numerous collectif show.

Since 2016, he is represented by Spazio Nuovo Gallery in Rome, and joins the Galerie Binome in 2017.

In 2015, he introduced a scale installation : SFUMATO for Nuit Blanche, as well as a first solo show : HOMMAGE², in Paris, Brussels and Rome.

For his second exhibition, he offered in 2016 a series of collage CINEMA : histoires domestiques, playing on borders between document and fiction and showed at Le 104, as part of Circulation(s) festival 2017. Since then, the series is noticed by collectors of photography and contemporary art. He takes part of several collective exhibitions in France (Galerie Binome, Paris; Taverne Gutenberg, Lyon) and especially in London at London art fair (Noorforart contemporary Gallery) and at Photographers Gallery with the London alternative collective exhibition.

In 2017, CINEMA: histoires domestique will be shown at Unseen in the Premiere Talent section, then in November at Approche, Salon photographique at the same time as Paris Photo.

Galerie Binome - biography

Galerie Binome opened in the Marais in Paris in October 2010 and is devoted to contemporary photography. In parallel to an annual program of solo and group shows, it takes part in Mois de la Photo in Paris and regularly exhibits in international contemporary art and photography fairs. Member of the Comité professionnel des galeries d'art, Galerie Binome collaborates with various other key figures in the world of art and photography, curators, privat and public institutions.

Galerie Binome opens his program to emerging artists from contemporary art. The selection leans more specifically towards visual arts, in search of new forms of photography. These artists, from a variety of backgrounds, from conceptual photography, sculpture, performance, drawing and writing, explore the boundaries of medium and supports. To define the domain of photography, its scope and limits, as well as the post-photographic condition, are at the center of the research carried out by the gallery.

Galerie Binome is directed by Valérie Cazin. Graduate in private law, she practiced with lawyers at the Court of Cassation for twelve years, specializing in copyright law. She founded Galerie Binome in 2010 after a course in visual history and scenography in 2010. Valérie Cazin regularly participates in portfolio reviews and is on the jury for photography competitions.

Since 2015, she collaborates with Émilie Traverse. Former student by ENSP in Arles and High School of Rennes in visual art, Émilie Traverse is skilled as exhibition's curator and productor.
